

WHITNEY WILL NOT TAKE IT.

He Declines the National Democratic Chairmanship.

Mr. Cleveland Invited to Be a Tammany Fourth of July Orator.

Ex-Navy Secretary William C. Whitney put a stop to-day to the talk of making him Chairman of the Democratic National Committee. In the same unequivocal style of his renunciation of all Presidential ambitions, Mr. Whitney declines this honor desired to be thrust upon him. He says, tersely: "Many Democrats have been good enough to mention my name in connection with the chairmanship, but I will not take it under any circumstances."

There is nothing under the bush in that declaration either, and the leaders have already begun to cast about them for some other man upon whom to center the honor and the accompanying responsibility and hard work of the campaign.

The National Committee will meet July 13 or 14, after Mr. Cleveland has been officially notified of his nomination, which ceremony will be performed at his home in this city a day or two before that time. The most urgent business of the committee will be the perfecting of its organization, and the selection of a Chairman will come first. William F. Harris, Secretary of State of Pennsylvania, was looked upon as the next greatest general at Chicago after Whitney, impressing Mr. Cleveland's friends as a first-rate organizer, and his work in Chicago, added to the success which has crowned his efforts in the Keystone State, where a Democratic Governor and several other Democratic State officers are now in power, makes him the most likely candidate for Senator Calvin B. Hise's place.

Mr. Harris is less than forty-two years old, having been born in Wilmington, Del., Oct. 10, 1850. He studied law at twenty with Lewis C. Cassidy, and in 1873 was admitted to the bar, attaining a most successful practice before the Keystone criminal courts. He early became recognized as an efficient organizer. He was the political father of Gov. Robert E. Pattison; he reduced the factional war in Philadelphia to peace and unity; he materially assisted in Mr. Pattison's two elections. Mr. Harris was a delegate-at-large to the Convention of 1884.

President Cleveland appointed him Postmaster of Philadelphia, and he made an enviable record in that office. He is President of the Equitable Trust Company.

Mr. Harris is a six-footer, broad-shouldered and deep-chested. He wears a small brown mustache and has curly chestnut hair. He is an easy talker, has a sanguine, never-say-die temperament and a quick mental grasp.

COOGAN FOR CONGRESS. Col. James J. Coogan is anxious to be one of Tammany's candidates for Congress. He is out of business now and desires his old experience of 1888, when he spent $100,000 as the candidate of the labor party for Mayor and got only 8,000 votes. He is anxious to get into politics again.

Col. Coogan got his title as commander of the famous Hancock Legion in the Presidential campaign of 1880. It is considered very probable that he will be a candidate for Congress in 1892.

TAMMANY INVITES CLEVELAND. Ex-President Grover Cleveland has been favored with an invitation to address the established Democratic Convention, the Fourth of July pow-wow of the Society of Tammany or Columbian Order, which will be held at Tammany Hall, at 10 o'clock A. M., its celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of American independence. The occasion is designed to be of exceptional significance and extended effect.

We earnestly desire the favor of your personal presence and give you this urgent invitation to attend and address the meeting. It would be an honor and a privilege to have you with us on this important day. Yours very respectfully, W. H. Harrison, President of the Society of Tammany or Columbian Order, 100 West Broadway, New York.

IT'S BIDWELL AND CRANFILL.

Prohibitionists Complete Their National Ticket at 2 A. M.

Sam Small Withdraws from His Candidacy for Second Place.

The State League of Democratic Clubs is getting ready for next week in the State Convention. The Sub-Executive Committee gathered last night at the Hotel Hamilton, 150 West Broadway, to discuss plans. Among those present were, ex-Mayor John B. Thayer, of Albany, President of the State League; Kingsbury Curtis, President John R. Arnold, of the Board of Aldermen, and Robert O'Brien, Mayor.

President Thayer was authorized to appoint an Executive Campaign Committee, which is to look after all the details preliminary to an aggressive campaign, which will begin with the State Convention of the clubs in the latter part of August or first week of September. Mr. Thayer is the real beginning of the great National ticket.

BROOKFIELD ASKED TO BE HARRISON. William Brookfield, Chairman of the Republican State Committee, and the County Committee, has been invited by Senator Hise to visit President Harrison at the White House. Mr. Brookfield is already related to ex-Senator Hise.

SPARROW COPS NEW CAPTAIN.

Much Criticism of the Appointment of Collins to Succeed Beatty.

The promotion of Sgt. Christopher C. Collins by the Park Board to be Captain of the Park Police, in the place of the late Capt. Beatty, has aroused much unfavorable criticism on the ground that it was a piece of favoritism.

He was promoted over the heads of his superiors both in length of service and good record, and it is said that it was only his political pull which enabled him to secure his repeated promotions. He is a relative of the wife of Mr. Richard Croker, and was first appointed as a park gatekeeper in 1870 at the instance of Mr. Croker. In 1885 he was raised to the rank of a roundman, but afterward reduced to the rank of a constable.

A few days after Capt. Beatty's death he was made a roundman again, and on May 1 was promoted to a sergeant without any apparent reason. In the ratings of the Civil Service Commission, Sgt. Collins stood several points higher than Collins, while Sgt. Croker, who has been in the service for twenty-five years, was equal in standing with him.

Commissioner Callahan says that the Board chose Collins because he was a man of strong individuality, capable of managing a large body of men.

"Besides," he said, "our ideal of a commander of the force was a retired cavalry officer, who would look well on horseback and who should be a gentleman as well. There was no better cavalry officer on hand, so we took Collins."

Col. Coogan is anxious to be one of Tammany's candidates for Congress. He is out of business now and desires his old experience of 1888, when he spent $100,000 as the candidate of the labor party for Mayor and got only 8,000 votes. He is anxious to get into politics again.

Col. Coogan got his title as commander of the famous Hancock Legion in the Presidential campaign of 1880. It is considered very probable that he will be a candidate for Congress in 1892.

TAMMANY INVITES CLEVELAND. Ex-President Grover Cleveland has been favored with an invitation to address the established Democratic Convention, the Fourth of July pow-wow of the Society of Tammany or Columbian Order, which will be held at Tammany Hall, at 10 o'clock A. M., its celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of American independence. The occasion is designed to be of exceptional significance and extended effect.

We earnestly desire the favor of your personal presence and give you this urgent invitation to attend and address the meeting. It would be an honor and a privilege to have you with us on this important day. Yours very respectfully, W. H. Harrison, President of the Society of Tammany or Columbian Order, 100 West Broadway, New York.

Col. Coogan is anxious to be one of Tammany's candidates for Congress. He is out of business now and desires his old experience of 1888, when he spent $100,000 as the candidate of the labor party for Mayor and got only 8,000 votes. He is anxious to get into politics again.

Col. Coogan got his title as commander of the famous Hancock Legion in the Presidential campaign of 1880. It is considered very probable that he will be a candidate for Congress in 1892.

TAMMANY INVITES CLEVELAND. Ex-President Grover Cleveland has been favored with an invitation to address the established Democratic Convention, the Fourth of July pow-wow of the Society of Tammany or Columbian Order, which will be held at Tammany Hall, at 10 o'clock A. M., its celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of American independence. The occasion is designed to be of exceptional significance and extended effect.

We earnestly desire the favor of your personal presence and give you this urgent invitation to attend and address the meeting. It would be an honor and a privilege to have you with us on this important day. Yours very respectfully, W. H. Harrison, President of the Society of Tammany or Columbian Order, 100 West Broadway, New York.

Col. Coogan is anxious to be one of Tammany's candidates for Congress. He is out of business now and desires his old experience of 1888, when he spent $100,000 as the candidate of the labor party for Mayor and got only 8,000 votes. He is anxious to get into politics again.

Col. Coogan got his title as commander of the famous Hancock Legion in the Presidential campaign of 1880. It is considered very probable that he will be a candidate for Congress in 1892.

TAMMANY INVITES CLEVELAND. Ex-President Grover Cleveland has been favored with an invitation to address the established Democratic Convention, the Fourth of July pow-wow of the Society of Tammany or Columbian Order, which will be held at Tammany Hall, at 10 o'clock A. M., its celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of American independence. The occasion is designed to be of exceptional significance and extended effect.

We earnestly desire the favor of your personal presence and give you this urgent invitation to attend and address the meeting. It would be an honor and a privilege to have you with us on this important day. Yours very respectfully, W. H. Harrison, President of the Society of Tammany or Columbian Order, 100 West Broadway, New York.

Col. Coogan is anxious to be one of Tammany's candidates for Congress. He is out of business now and desires his old experience of 1888, when he spent $100,000 as the candidate of the labor party for Mayor and got only 8,000 votes. He is anxious to get into politics again.

Col. Coogan got his title as commander of the famous Hancock Legion in the Presidential campaign of 1880. It is considered very probable that he will be a candidate for Congress in 1892.

TAMMANY INVITES CLEVELAND. Ex-President Grover Cleveland has been favored with an invitation to address the established Democratic Convention, the Fourth of July pow-wow of the Society of Tammany or Columbian Order, which will be held at Tammany Hall, at 10 o'clock A. M., its celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of American independence. The occasion is designed to be of exceptional significance and extended effect.

We earnestly desire the favor of your personal presence and give you this urgent invitation to attend and address the meeting. It would be an honor and a privilege to have you with us on this important day. Yours very respectfully, W. H. Harrison, President of the Society of Tammany or Columbian Order, 100 West Broadway, New York.

Col. Coogan is anxious to be one of Tammany's candidates for Congress. He is out of business now and desires his old experience of 1888, when he spent $100,000 as the candidate of the labor party for Mayor and got only 8,000 votes. He is anxious to get into politics again.

Col. Coogan got his title as commander of the famous Hancock Legion in the Presidential campaign of 1880. It is considered very probable that he will be a candidate for Congress in 1892.

TAMMANY INVITES CLEVELAND. Ex-President Grover Cleveland has been favored with an invitation to address the established Democratic Convention, the Fourth of July pow-wow of the Society of Tammany or Columbian Order, which will be held at Tammany Hall, at 10 o'clock A. M., its celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of American independence. The occasion is designed to be of exceptional significance and extended effect.

We earnestly desire the favor of your personal presence and give you this urgent invitation to attend and address the meeting. It would be an honor and a privilege to have you with us on this important day. Yours very respectfully, W. H. Harrison, President of the Society of Tammany or Columbian Order, 100 West Broadway, New York.

Col. Coogan is anxious to be one of Tammany's candidates for Congress. He is out of business now and desires his old experience of 1888, when he spent $100,000 as the candidate of the labor party for Mayor and got only 8,000 votes. He is anxious to get into politics again.

Col. Coogan got his title as commander of the famous Hancock Legion in the Presidential campaign of 1880. It is considered very probable that he will be a candidate for Congress in 1892.

TAMMANY INVITES CLEVELAND. Ex-President Grover Cleveland has been favored with an invitation to address the established Democratic Convention, the Fourth of July pow-wow of the Society of Tammany or Columbian Order, which will be held at Tammany Hall, at 10 o'clock A. M., its celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of American independence. The occasion is designed to be of exceptional significance and extended effect.

We earnestly desire the favor of your personal presence and give you this urgent invitation to attend and address the meeting. It would be an honor and a privilege to have you with us on this important day. Yours very respectfully, W. H. Harrison, President of the Society of Tammany or Columbian Order, 100 West Broadway, New York.

Col. Coogan is anxious to be one of Tammany's candidates for Congress. He is out of business now and desires his old experience of 1888, when he spent $100,000 as the candidate of the labor party for Mayor and got only 8,000 votes. He is anxious to get into politics again.

Col. Coogan got his title as commander of the famous Hancock Legion in the Presidential campaign of 1880. It is considered very probable that he will be a candidate for Congress in 1892.

KATIE RILEY'S QUEER STORY.

She Puzzles Police and Children's Society Officers.

They Found Her Sleeping in a Vacant Lot in Yorkville.

Police Justice Kilbreth had to lean far out of his chair, in Yorkville Court, this morning, to see little Katie Riley, twelve years old, who was charged by Agent King, of the Children's Society, with being homeless and wandering around the streets unaccompanied. The justice was told that Katie had a penchant for telling lies. Agent King specified a few of the girl's fabrications, and Justice Kilbreth said: "She certainly is very precocious. I will remand her to the society's care until you have a chance to find out something truthful about her."

Katie wore a red sailor blouse, with a wide rolling blue collar and blue cuffs, and a cheap black skirt, reaching just below her knees. A flat black straw hat rested rakishly on her head and a long braid of black hair hung in loops down her back. Her eyes are lank and blue, and her face, aged beyond her years, is pale and pinched.

"My name is Katie Riley," she said, "and I'm twelve years old. I live at Thirty-sixth street and Eleventh avenue. Two nights ago, in the rear, my mother's name was Catherine. She is dead and is buried in Calvary Cemetery."

"I didn't have anybody to look after me since, and nobody has given me anything to eat or any clothes to wear. These clothes I have worn ever since my mother died, and they stretched out on a row."

"I have a sister Maggie in the Catholic Protectors, and Eddie, my brother, gets $3 a week for paper factory work," she said. "I have a mother's name is Philip, but he lives with a woman on Thirty-seventh street, and she is dead. That's why I left home a week or so ago."

She added that she had slept out of doors and had not eaten anything for a week. "I have a mother's name is Philip, but he lives with a woman on Thirty-seventh street, and she is dead. That's why I left home a week or so ago."

Police Justice Kilbreth had to lean far out of his chair, in Yorkville Court, this morning, to see little Katie Riley, twelve years old, who was charged by Agent King, of the Children's Society, with being homeless and wandering around the streets unaccompanied. The justice was told that Katie had a penchant for telling lies. Agent King specified a few of the girl's fabrications, and Justice Kilbreth said: "She certainly is very precocious. I will remand her to the society's care until you have a chance to find out something truthful about her."

Katie wore a red sailor blouse, with a wide rolling blue collar and blue cuffs, and a cheap black skirt, reaching just below her knees. A flat black straw hat rested rakishly on her head and a long braid of black hair hung in loops down her back. Her eyes are lank and blue, and her face, aged beyond her years, is pale and pinched.

"My name is Katie Riley," she said, "and I'm twelve years old. I live at Thirty-sixth street and Eleventh avenue. Two nights ago, in the rear, my mother's name was Catherine. She is dead and is buried in Calvary Cemetery."

"I didn't have anybody to look after me since, and nobody has given me anything to eat or any clothes to wear. These clothes I have worn ever since my mother died, and they stretched out on a row."

"I have a sister Maggie in the Catholic Protectors, and Eddie, my brother, gets $3 a week for paper factory work," she said. "I have a mother's name is Philip, but he lives with a woman on Thirty-seventh street, and she is dead. That's why I left home a week or so ago."

She added that she had slept out of doors and had not eaten anything for a week. "I have a mother's name is Philip, but he lives with a woman on Thirty-seventh street, and she is dead. That's why I left home a week or so ago."

Police Justice Kilbreth had to lean far out of his chair, in Yorkville Court, this morning, to see little Katie Riley, twelve years old, who was charged by Agent King, of the Children's Society, with being homeless and wandering around the streets unaccompanied. The justice was told that Katie had a penchant for telling lies. Agent King specified a few of the girl's fabrications, and Justice Kilbreth said: "She certainly is very precocious. I will remand her to the society's care until you have a chance to find out something truthful about her."

Katie wore a red sailor blouse, with a wide rolling blue collar and blue cuffs, and a cheap black skirt, reaching just below her knees. A flat black straw hat rested rakishly on her head and a long braid of black hair hung in loops down her back. Her eyes are lank and blue, and her face, aged beyond her years, is pale and pinched.

"My name is Katie Riley," she said, "and I'm twelve years old. I live at Thirty-sixth street and Eleventh avenue. Two nights ago, in the rear, my mother's name was Catherine. She is dead and is buried in Calvary Cemetery."

"I didn't have anybody to look after me since, and nobody has given me anything to eat or any clothes to wear. These clothes I have worn ever since my mother died, and they stretched out on a row."

"I have a sister Maggie in the Catholic Protectors, and Eddie, my brother, gets $3 a week for paper factory work," she said. "I have a mother's name is Philip, but he lives with a woman on Thirty-seventh street, and she is dead. That's why I left home a week or so ago."

She added that she had slept out of doors and had not eaten anything for a week. "I have a mother's name is Philip, but he lives with a woman on Thirty-seventh street, and she is dead. That's why I left home a week or so ago."

Police Justice Kilbreth had to lean far out of his chair, in Yorkville Court, this morning, to see little Katie Riley, twelve years old, who was charged by Agent King, of the Children's Society, with being homeless and wandering around the streets unaccompanied. The justice was told that Katie had a penchant for telling lies. Agent King specified a few of the girl's fabrications, and Justice Kilbreth said: "She certainly is very precocious. I will remand her to the society's care until you have a chance to find out something truthful about her."

Katie wore a red sailor blouse, with a wide rolling blue collar and blue cuffs, and a cheap black skirt, reaching just below her knees. A flat black straw hat rested rakishly on her head and a long braid of black hair hung in loops down her back. Her eyes are lank and blue, and her face, aged beyond her years, is pale and pinched.

"My name is Katie Riley," she said, "and I'm twelve years old. I live at Thirty-sixth street and Eleventh avenue. Two nights ago, in the rear, my mother's name was Catherine. She is dead and is buried in Calvary Cemetery."

"I didn't have anybody to look after me since, and nobody has given me anything to eat or any clothes to wear. These clothes I have worn ever since my mother died, and they stretched out on a row."

"I have a sister Maggie in the Catholic Protectors, and Eddie, my brother, gets $3 a week for paper factory work," she said. "I have a mother's name is Philip, but he lives with a woman on Thirty-seventh street, and she is dead. That's why I left home a week or so ago."

She added that she had slept out of doors and had not eaten anything for a week. "I have a mother's name is Philip, but he lives with a woman on Thirty-seventh street, and she is dead. That's why I left home a week or so ago."

Police Justice Kilbreth had to lean far out of his chair, in Yorkville Court, this morning, to see little Katie Riley, twelve years old, who was charged by Agent King, of the Children's Society, with being homeless and wandering around the streets unaccompanied. The justice was told that Katie had a penchant for telling lies. Agent King specified a few of the girl's fabrications, and Justice Kilbreth said: "She certainly is very precocious. I will remand her to the society's care until you have a chance to find out something truthful about her."

Katie wore a red sailor blouse, with a wide rolling blue collar and blue cuffs, and a cheap black skirt, reaching just below her knees. A flat black straw hat rested rakishly on her head and a long braid of black hair hung in loops down her back. Her eyes are lank and blue, and her face, aged beyond her years, is pale and pinched.

"My name is Katie Riley," she said, "and I'm twelve years old. I live at Thirty-sixth street and Eleventh avenue. Two nights ago, in the rear, my mother's name was Catherine. She is dead and is buried in Calvary Cemetery."

"I didn't have anybody to look after me since, and nobody has given me anything to eat or any clothes to wear. These clothes I have worn ever since my mother died, and they stretched out on a row."

"I have a sister Maggie in the Catholic Protectors, and Eddie, my brother, gets $3 a week for paper factory work," she said. "I have a mother's name is Philip, but he lives with a woman on Thirty-seventh street, and she is dead. That's why I left home a week or so ago."

She added that she had slept out of doors and had not eaten anything for a week. "I have a mother's name is Philip, but he lives with a woman on Thirty-seventh street, and she is dead. That's why I left home a week or so ago."

Police Justice Kilbreth had to lean far out of his chair, in Yorkville Court, this morning, to see little Katie Riley, twelve years old, who was charged by Agent King, of the Children's Society, with being homeless and wandering around the streets unaccompanied. The justice was told that Katie had a penchant for telling lies. Agent King specified a few of the girl's fabrications, and Justice Kilbreth said: "She certainly is very precocious. I will remand her to the society's care until you have a chance to find out something truthful about her."

Katie wore a red sailor blouse, with a wide rolling blue collar and blue cuffs, and a cheap black skirt, reaching just below her knees. A flat black straw hat rested rakishly on her head and a long braid of black hair hung in loops down her back. Her eyes are lank and blue, and her face, aged beyond her years, is pale and pinched.

"My name is Katie Riley," she said, "and I'm twelve years old. I live at Thirty-sixth street and Eleventh avenue. Two nights ago, in the rear, my mother's name was Catherine. She is dead and is buried in Calvary Cemetery."

"I didn't have anybody to look after me since, and nobody has given me anything to eat or any clothes to wear. These clothes I have worn ever since my mother died, and they stretched out on a row."

"I have a sister Maggie in the Catholic Protectors, and Eddie, my brother, gets $3 a week for paper factory work," she said. "I have a mother's name is Philip, but he lives with a woman on Thirty-seventh street, and she is dead. That's why I left home a week or so ago."

She added that she had slept out of doors and had not eaten anything for a week. "I have a mother's name is Philip, but he lives with a woman on Thirty-seventh street, and she is dead. That's why I left home a week or so ago."

Police Justice Kilbreth had to lean far out of his chair, in Yorkville Court, this morning, to see little Katie Riley, twelve years old, who was charged by Agent King, of the Children's Society, with being homeless and wandering around the streets unaccompanied. The justice was told that Katie had a penchant for telling lies. Agent King specified a few of the girl's fabrications, and Justice Kilbreth said: "She certainly is very precocious. I will remand her to the society's care until you have a chance to find out something truthful about her."

Katie wore a red sailor blouse, with a wide rolling blue collar and blue cuffs, and a cheap black skirt, reaching just below her knees. A flat black straw hat rested rakishly on her head and a long braid of black hair hung in loops down her back. Her eyes are lank and blue, and her face, aged beyond her years, is pale and pinched.

"My name is Katie Riley," she said, "and I'm twelve years old. I live at Thirty-sixth street and Eleventh avenue. Two nights ago, in the rear, my mother's name was Catherine. She is dead and is buried in Calvary Cemetery."

"I didn't have anybody to look after me since, and nobody has given me anything to eat or any clothes to wear. These clothes I have worn ever since my mother died, and they stretched out on a row."

FELL DYING IN A CABLE CAR.

Michael Mylan's Sudden Death on His Way to His Work.

Ascar No. 30 of the Third Avenue Company's cable road was passing the corner of Amsterdam avenue and One Hundred and Seventy-eighth street at 7 o'clock this morning when the passengers were startled to see one of their number, apparently a laboring man, fall forward from his seat, striking the floor heavily.

He lay writhing on the floor of the car, evidently in a fit. The conductor of the car, William Moran, of 437 Pleasant avenue, gave the signal to stop, and with the assistance of John Brown, of 750 Ninth avenue, a passenger, lifted the man to the street, and assigned him to Maria's Hotel, at One Hundred and Seventy-eighth street, and the car went on.

Policeman O'Neill was called in to aid the suffering man, who was in convulsions, and he sent in an ambulance call, but before help arrived the man was dead.

The body was removed to the police station at One Hundred and Fifty-second street and from there removed to the Harlem morgue. The Coroner's office was notified.

At the police station the dead man was identified as Michael Mylan, of 202 East Forty-fourth street. He was forty-four years old, and had a wife and six children, and was on his way to work on one of Conductor Crutcher's jobs on Washington Heights. A doctor is supposed to have caused his death.

It was notified of her husband's death and went to the police station to claim the body. She cried bitterly, and told the officers that she was in destitute circumstances.

Inspector Steers had not heard of it, and Capt. O'Connor, of the First Precinct, station at 101st street, in which is the station where the only robbery reported at the station in several weeks was that of two loaves of bread.

Wall street must be getting pretty poor when all an industrious thief can find there is a loaf of bread.

Mabel Strassburg Took Part. An account of an entertainment held at the residence of Walter Godfrey, 141 West One Hundred and Thirtieth street, was printed in Tuesday's Evening World. By some oversight the name of Mabel Strassburg was omitted from the list of performers. She is eight years old, and acquitted herself admirably in two recitations, "Don't" and "The Railroad."

At the office of the Cunard line, 4 Bowling green, an Evening World reporter learned this morning that the Umbria sailed May 7. Her last trip previous to that was April 9, a week before Mr. Reese left Denver.

The Umbria's agent says that his ticket was purchased at the Chicago office, and could not have been used on any other ship.

Mr. Reese's name does not appear among either the saloon, second cabin or steerage passengers who sailed on the Umbria May 7, and so far as is known he has not been seen at the Cunard line office.

TWO PLUCKY WOMEN. They Drive Out an Intruder in Their Apartments and Secure His Arrest.

Soon after 3 o'clock this morning Mrs. Sarah Cohen beat some one in her apartment on 28th street.

She woke her sister-in-law, Ida Cohen, and the two found John McGettrick, whom they frightened into the street, followed and pointed out to an officer.

He was arrested, and this morning Justice Dwyer at the Tombs Police Court held him for trial.

Prepare the Address in Memphis. (BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) NEW ORLEANS, La., July 1.—The Times-Democrat's San Antonio correspondent says: Judge J. H. McLeary, Chairman of the sub-Committee appointed by the Notification Committee to prepare the address to be presented to Cleveland and Stevenson on July 11th, New Orleans, has just sent word that he would probably call a meeting of his Committee in Memphis on July 8 to prepare the address.

Bayne's Sixty-ninth Regiment Band will furnish the music at Battery Park to-night at 8 o'clock. The following is the programme:

1.—March Militaire. 2.—Wyma. 3.—March Militaire. 4.—Wyma. 5.—March Militaire. 6.—Wyma. 7.—March Militaire. 8.—Wyma. 9.—March Militaire. 10.—Wyma. 11.—March Militaire. 12.—Wyma. 13.—March Militaire. 14.—Wyma. 15.—March Militaire. 16.—Wyma. 17.—March Militaire. 18.—Wyma. 19.—March Militaire. 20.—Wyma. 21.—March Militaire. 22.—Wyma. 23.—March Militaire. 24.—Wyma. 25.—March Militaire. 26.—Wyma. 27.—March Militaire. 28.—Wyma. 29.—March Militaire. 30.—Wyma. 31.—March Militaire. 32.—Wyma. 33.—March Militaire. 34.—Wyma. 35.—March Militaire. 36.—Wyma. 37.—March Militaire. 38.—Wyma. 39.—March Militaire. 40.—Wyma. 41.—March Militaire. 42.—Wyma. 43.—March Militaire. 44.—Wyma. 45.—March Militaire. 46.—Wyma. 47.—March Militaire. 48.—Wyma. 49.—March Militaire. 50.—Wyma. 51.—March Militaire. 52.—Wyma. 53.—March Militaire. 54.—Wyma. 55.—March Militaire. 56.—Wyma. 57.—March Militaire. 58.—Wyma. 59.—March Militaire. 60.—Wyma. 61.—March Militaire. 62.—Wyma. 63.—March Militaire. 64.—Wyma. 65.—March Militaire. 66.—Wyma. 67.—March Militaire. 68.—Wyma. 69.—March Militaire. 70.—Wyma. 71.—March Militaire. 72.—Wyma. 73.—March Militaire. 74.—Wyma. 75.—March Militaire. 76.—Wyma. 77.—March Militaire. 78.—Wyma. 79.—March Militaire. 80.—Wyma. 81.—March Militaire. 82.—Wyma. 83.—March Militaire. 84.—Wyma. 85.—March Militaire. 86.—Wyma. 87.—March Militaire. 88.—Wyma. 89.—March Militaire. 90.—Wyma. 91.—March Militaire. 92.—Wyma. 93.—March Militaire. 94.—Wyma. 95.—March Militaire. 96.—Wyma. 97.—March Militaire. 98.—Wyma. 99.—March Militaire. 100.—Wyma.

PARSON DIXON STILL MAD.

He Promises to Make It Hot for the Grand Jury That Indicted Him.

In spite of the dismissal of the indictment against him, as announced in THE EVENING WORLD'S Sporting Extra last night, Rev. Thomas Dixon has not been pacified nor does he retract what he said of Excise Commissioner Joseph Koch, whom he was accused of libelling.

When Mr. Dixon read of the dismissal of the indictment he was about leaving on a southern trip, but before taking the train he said to a reporter:

"Mr. Dixon makes some remarks in that dismissal that are not to my liking. Every word I said about Joseph Koch was true and I have the proofs. I will return to New York on Sunday morning, July 10, and expose this whole distasteful conspiracy. I intend to make it warm for that Grand Jury."

The dismissal of the indictment was the outcome of a conference held on Tuesday between District Attorney Nicol and Messrs. Pitman and Chittenden, counsel for Commissioner Koch and Mr. Dixon, respectively.

WALL STREET IS SAFE. Nothing More Valuable Than Bread Rewards Thieves There.